

IS YOUR BUSINESS FIT?

Cindi Rourk

Director of Business & Community Loan Officer, LDC

The LDC is a community-driven nonprofit, dedicated to growing the local economy by providing flexible, affordable, and customizable loans to small businesses that are unable to find traditional funding. The LDC's mission is to foster economic development and job creation through providing capital to entrepreneurs and small businesses in South Carolina.

Cindi Rourk joined the LDC in 2008 and is the Director of Business Development and Community Loan Officer. Her main goal is to help business owners understand their financial needs, and to help them through the business borrowing process. She is also charged with ensuring that leaders in South Carolina know about the LDC and its services. Cindi is an active presenter on access to small business capital for SCORE, the Small Business Development Centers, economic development authorities, and other small business supporters.

Cindi has been part of the Charleston community since pre-Hugo days, and in the banking community for over 20 years. A graduate of Appalachian State University, Leadership Charleston, and SC Bankers' School, Cindi is originally from Dallas, North Carolina (not Texas.)
