Alissa Weathers is a Socio Economic Business Liaison with Huntington-Ingalls Newport News Shipbuilding (NNS). In her position she advocates for soliciting and awarding small businesses the opportunity of subcontracting with NNS. After spending nearly a decade working in law, Alissa knows what truly drives success in procurement and contracting is a strong ethical background and adherence to all rules and regulations. Her goal is to ensure that she reaches as many small businesses and provide them with the opportunity of helping to uphold the NNS motto of "Getting Hard Stuff Done Right".

Alissa has served as member of the Pipeline Committee for the National Institute of Governmental Purchasing Inc. (NIGP), as well as held several leadership positions in various procurement organizations. In addition to her legal background and procurement experience, Alissa has a wealth of knowledge in contract negotiations.

Alissa holds a BS in Criminal Justice and Homeland Security from Virginia Commonwealth University. She is currently pursuing a Masters degree in Public Administration with an emphasis in Procurement and Contract Management from Old Dominion University. She is also a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Inc.
