Development Council

Troy Roberts is the president and CEO of Alliance of Professionals & Consultants, Inc. (APC), a certified Native American company headquartered in Raleigh, NC. Founded in 1993, APC helps clients solve complex business issues and workforce challenges by providing highly skilled contract professionals and project-based business solutions.

In his role as president and CEO, Roberts is responsible for providing strategic leadership of the award-winning global services company by staying well informed of relevant industry trends affecting clients and professionals. Further, he sets the expectations for maintaining the organization's values, standards, and ethics, in part through intentionally creating a company culture based upon positively impacting lives.

Connect

Roberts is actively engaged in a variety of causes within the local community, with particularly strong associations with Saving Grace – Animals for Adoption, Walk for Hope, Wake Assisted Living Center, Healing Transitions, and Step-Up Ministry. Currently, Roberts serves on the board of directors for The Institute, a nonprofit management consulting and services firm focused on business diversity and inclusion. Roberts also serves on the board of directors for the Carolina's Virginia Minority Supplier Development Council.

Prior to joining APC in 1998, Roberts specialized in bank mergers and acquisitions within Accenture's finance industry line of business. He earned his Bachelor of Science in Business with concentration in finance from North Carolina State University, and his Master of Business Administration from UNC Kenan-Flagler Business School.

On the weekends, Roberts can be found at sporting events for his four sons, working in his yard, or helping his wife with her passion of fostering dogs and puppies. Roberts also serves in various leadership roles with the Y-Guides father and son program. When it's time to relax, you will find him spending time with his family at Indian Beach, NC, or at a Carolina Hurricanes or NC State football game.
